Roget's Thesaurus —a Treasure House of Our Language

While in Houston last week and I bought some paperback books at a newsstand and among them was one of the classic references of the English language: Roget's Thesaurus. Its exact title is "Roget's College Thesaurus," the 60th printing of the revised edition which appeared in 1958.

But the original Thesaurus was published in 1853—so this bright and shining paperback is really 125 years old.

The foreword of my book reports:

"Peter Mark Roget was an English physician who was born in 1779 and died in 1869. As a hobby he liked to make lists of words and group them together when they were related to one another."

"Some were related because they were synonyms, such as 'illegal' and 'unlawful'; some because they were antonyms, such as 'peaceful' and 'warlike.'"

The foreword goes on to say Dr. Roget called his book "Thesaurus," meaning a treasury of words. It was the first reference of its kind in the English language and instantly captured the minds of scholars and editors. Hundreds cooperated in bringing out countless revised editions, mine edited through 1958 being merely the latest in a history going back 125 years.

"Roget's Thesaurus" belongs on the desk of every man or woman in the world of communications. Looking for the right word? The Thesaurus has it.

I have to admit this editor has been operating without it for a great many years. Other references I do have, but my original hardback Thesaurus was lost decades ago.

So in Houston I supplied my library's deficiency.

Nixon veto overridden by Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — With quick and decisive votes, Congress has overridden President Nixon's veto and granted $60,000 retired railroad workers a temporary 20-per-cent increase in pension payments.

Nixon vetoed the bill at noon Wednesday; by midafternoon, the House had voted 353 to 29 to override the veto, and a few hours later, the Senate voted 78 to 5 to override.

In both cases, the margin was far larger than the two-thirds majority required to upset the veto. The action means that the bill has become law.

3 Americans killed in VN

SAIGON (AP) — Three Americans were killed in action last week, the highest toll in five weeks, three died from nonhostile causes, four were wounded and one was missing, the U.S. Command reported today.

Meanwhile, both South and North Vietnamese battlefield deaths fell to their lowest level of the six-month Communist offensive.

The Saigon command reported that 382 South Vietnamese troops were killed, 1,486 were wounded and 66 were missing in action during the seven-day period ending at midnight last Saturday.

It claimed its forces and U.S. air and naval power killed 1,848 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops.

The President said in his veto message that the pension hike would hasten the bankruptcy of the railroad retirement system. He protested that the bill provided no way to raise the extra funds for the higher payments.

Congress passed the bill last month in order to extend to retired railroad workers the same 20-per-cent increase voted earlier for Social Security recipients. Railroad workers are covered by a pension system separate from the Social Security system.

Nixon had reluctantly signed the Social Security increase after protesting that he thought it too high. It was attached to a debt-limit bill he needed in order to continue government operations.

During the Senate debate, some senators agreed with Nixon — the railroad fund is in shaky financial shape and said Congress next year must find some way to make it solvent.

However, Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., argued that with the Social Security increase already in effect, "equity required that we give a commensurate increase to railroad retirees."

The increase for railroad workers is effective only until next June 30, and Cranston said that to make the higher pensions permanent Congress must provide new financing.

The President proposed a substitute which he said would mean an average $26-a-month boost for a single worker and $47-a-month increase for a married couple.

Cutting up Main Street's trees

City crews have been busy the last several days cutting down the selected elm trees on South Main St., which died after placement of deep sewer lines along the side of the Labor units smarting over orders

Meany steaming toward confrontations

WASHINGTON (AP) — AFL-CIO President George Meany is steaming toward a confrontation with state labor units smarting at his orders to repeal resolutions urging the defeat of Richard Nixon.

Meany reportedly has ordered a half-dozen or more state labor councils to abandon "dump Nixon" campaigns on grounds that such efforts violate the national federation's policy of neutrality in the presidential campaign.

"I don't have the authority to rescind the resolution. I'm going to work on it but we are busy trying to elect a U.S. senator down here and if I can find time, I'll do it," grumbled Oklahoma AFL-CIO President Henry L. Likes in a telephone interview.

"It's incredible," said a staff member of another state AFL-CIO council that has urged defeat of Nixon. "Everything Meany does is neutral in behalf of Nixon."

"Frankly, I don't think Nixon has done anything for the working man," said North Carolina

AFL-CIO President Wilbur Hobbs, who has not received an order from Meany but was expecting one because of the "dump Nixon" resolution adopted by the state convention Sept. 14.

He said he hasn't decided what to do because he can't flout the wishes of the state organization, but "neither am I supposed to go against national AFL-CIO policy."

President John F. Henning, of the 1.5-million-member California state AFL-CIO has ordered an emergency state convention Oct. 19 in Sacramento to take up Meany's order to rescind that group's anti-Nixon resolution.

Unconfirmed reports said similar Meany orders were going to AFL-CIO leaders in Minnesota, Nebraska, Iowa and Texas, whose state labor conventions had sought to skirt the neutrality edict by refraining from endorsing Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern, but calling for the defeat of Nixon.

The Colorado AFL-CIO openly challenged the Meany-inspired neutrality policy and endorsed McGovern. Meany then went into federal court in an effort to place the Colorado AFL-CIO under trusteeship. He lost, but plans to appeal.

In the letter to Likes of Oklahoma, Meany wrote:

"In my judgment, to call for the defeat of one candidate is to call for the endorsement of the other. It is a violation of policy to endorse either candidate."

Likes denied that the Oklahoma anti-Nixon resolution constituted a McGovern endorsement.

"The fact is that we condemned Mr. Nixon and the positions he has taken for the past 3½ years on issues on which the national AFL-CIO has condemned him—economic, the unemployment situation and the whole lot and caboodle of things," he said.

Asked his view of Meany's order, Likes said "I don't know how you read it, but I read it that he favors Mr. Nixon."

Former FBI agent discussed the Watergate bugging caper

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A former FBI agent who took part in the bugging of Democratic National Headquarters says he delivered reports on the eavesdropping to the Committee for the Re-election of the President, the Los Angeles Times reported today.

Times reporters Jack Nelson and Ronald J. Ostrow said they interviewed Alfred C. Baldwin III for more than five hours in New Haven, Conn., last week.

The Times said Baldwin, a 38-year-old former Marine Corps captain, decided to become a government witness in the bugging case only after he was "disowned" by the Committee for the Re-election of the President.

Baldwin told the Times he was in the Howard Johnson Hotel across the street when police caught five persons in Democratic headquarters in the Watergate complex in Washington D.C., June 17 as they were installing bugging equipment.

Until that morning, Baldwin told the Times, he had monitored a telephone tap placed in the Democratic offices earlier.

Baldwin said he would put his eavesdropping logs in an envelope, which he addressed to a committee official whose name he has since forgotten and would take them to the Nixon committee offices seven blocks away, the newspaper said.

The eavesdroppers, he told the Times, apparently were interested primarily in information about Sen. George McGovern, Lawrence F. O'Brien, then Democratic party chairman, and about Democratic political strategy.

The Times quoted Baldwin as saying he was hired by the Committee for the Re-election of the President as a security guard for Martha Mitchell, wife of former Atty. Gen. John Mitchell, but was later assigned such tasks as monitoring anti-Nixon demonstrations.

He told the Times his boss was James W. McCord Jr., security coordinator for the Nixon committee and one of seven persons indicted in the Watergate bugging case. Baldwin has not been charged in the case.

McCord, Baldwin said, assigned him to monitor a phone tap on May 25. Baldwin said he kept logs on about 200 conversations he monitored over a three-week period, the newspaper said.

Baldwin told the Times reporters he never questioned his orders from McCord.

"After all, his boss was John Mitchell, the committee director and former attorney general of the United States," the Times quoted Baldwin as saying. "And his superior was President Nixon."

Baldwin told the Times the squad of men entered the Watergate on June 17 after they found out which telephone in the offices was O'Brien's. Only one of two taps placed in the offices earlier functioned properly, he added.

Concentrating on ceramics

Mrs. Harvey Southward concentrates on putting the finishing touches on a ceramic Santa, as one of her pupils at a ceramics class watches intently. Mrs. Southward and her husband own a ceramics studio at Perrytown. (See article at right.)

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon said today "there will be no presidential tax increase" in 1973 but argued that "congressional overreaching" might make one necessary.

Learning the art of ceramics

By REBECCA LAZENBY
Of The Star Staff

Words like slip, greenware, and bisque are becoming more and more familiar to a great number of people as they become acquainted with art of ceramics.

What started out to be a hobby turned into a fulltime business for the Harvey Southwards of Perrytown.

Harvey and Ruth Southward operate a small ceramics shop where they both share "shop duties" and Ruth teaches afternoon and evening ceramics classes.

Southward's duties begin with mixing the "slip," which is actually a mixture of several different kinds of clay, and water. The slip is poured into various types of plaster molds and is left to set for a short period of time. When the slip is dried it is called greenware. The greenware, pliable and soft, is gently removed from the mold and is ready for cleaning.

Southward turned out several molds of greenware as he explained the different steps to making a finished product—a vase, assorted dishes and wares.

"Working with ceramics is the most fun I have ever had. I keep my eyes open for new ideas and try to include them with the molds I already have." Hundreds of molds for all types of dishes and you-name-it line the walls on shelves in the back shop where the slip is mixed and poured.

Rough edges and mold markings on the greenware are cleaned off by hand with a cleaning tool, sponge and water; after the edges are smoothed and all rough spots cleaned off it is ready for firing.

"The firing takes a lot of time. You can't get in a hurry," Southward explained. He placed greenware on shelves in one of the three kilns in the back shop. The kiln heats to 1,800 degrees and the greenware remains at that temperature for five and a half hours. Then the kiln is allowed to cool for at least 24 hours before the greenware, (Continued on page five)

Post-election probe of wheat deal promised

By MARGARET GENTRY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Agriculture Committee has promised a post-election probe of the U.S. wheat sale to the Soviet Union, a deal that Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butts now says he should have handled differently.

Butts told newsmen Wednesday that if he had known that one of his assistants was planning to quit and take a job with a major grain exporter, he would not have sent him to Moscow for agriculture trade negotiations.

The timing of Clarence D. Palmby's resignation as assistant agriculture secretary to become vice president of Continental Grain Co. in New York has figured in the grain-trade dispute.

Palmby reportedly contracted for an expensive New York apartment last April, a day or so before leaving for Moscow with Butts and other negotiators. Palmby finally quit June 7.

Had he known that Palmby was buying the New York apartment, Butts said, "I would not have taken Mr. Palmby on the team."

He emphasized he was not questioning Palmby's integrity, but would have considered it unwise to include a departing official in the negotiations because "in our business, you operate in a goldfish bowl."

Palmby repeatedly has denied that he carried advance information of the Soviet Union's massive grain purchases to Continental.

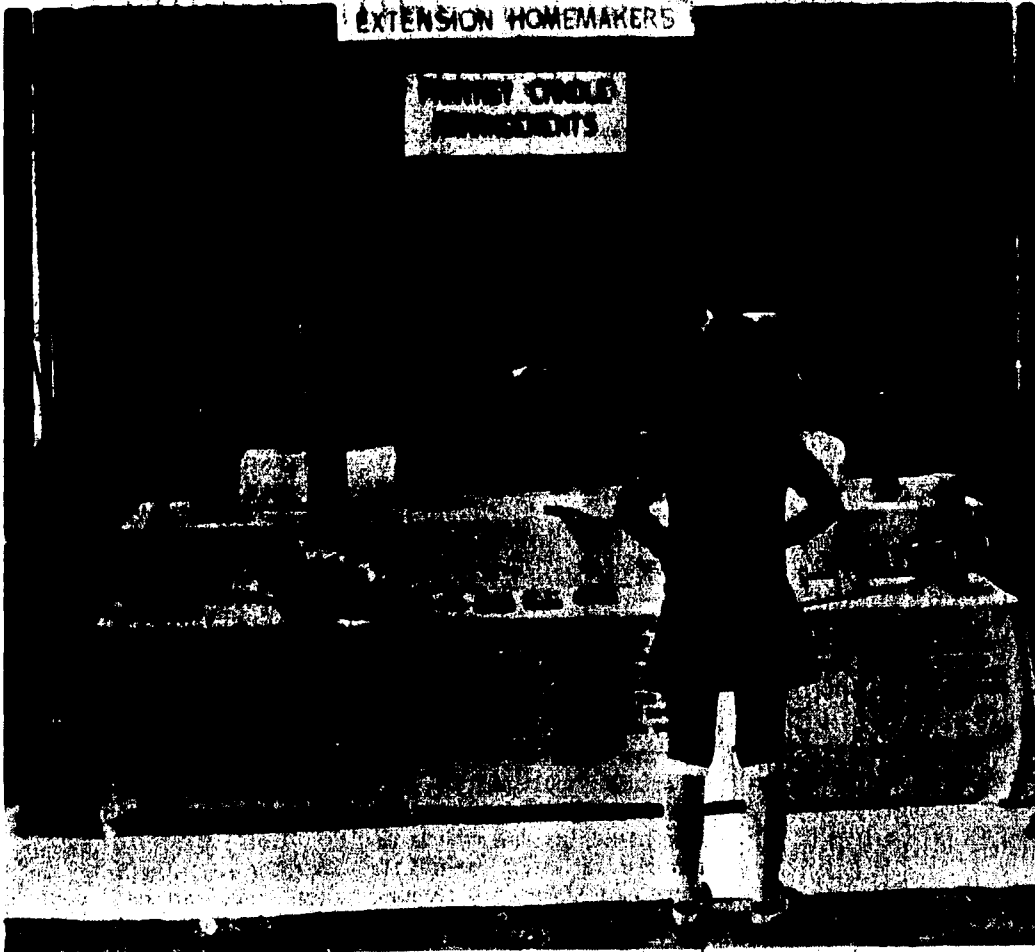

Critics of the deal have alleged that major exporters, including Continental, profited from advance knowledge, while farmers were kept in the dark as their wheat could be bought before the large sale pushed prices up. Meanwhile, Sen. Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., announced Wednesday that the Agriculture Committee will undertake a probe of the deal as soon as possible after the Nov. 7 election.

Talmadge, the committee chairman, said members will try to determine whether improper or illegal practices were followed and also will try "to correct any weaknesses in our procedures which have apparently created this controversy."

Talmadge questioned the Agriculture Department's export subsidy policy. "There is some question as to whether a $350 million subsidy was needed this year when no other country had significant quantities of wheat to offer on the world market," he said.

A House Agriculture subcommittee also may launch a post-election probe of the wheat deal.

Sinus infection decides cancellation of Democratic ad for President Nixon

NEW YORK (AP) — Because of a sinus infection, poor planning, or both, the first 30 minutes of ABC's "Julie Andrews Show" wasn't taken up Wednesday night by a paid Democratic ad for President Nixon.

Instead, the entire Andrews show scheduled for Wednesday night was indeed shown, even though this particular program had been rescheduled to appear the night of Oct. 11.

If this is confusing, imagine what it is for the guys at the three television networks who have to clear time slots purchased by the Democratic and Republican presidential campaign committees. Wednesday night may prove to be just an isolated case, but it was the kind of situation that'll give networks the willies right up until the day the next president is elected. It worked this way:

The "Democrats for Nixon" committee ordered a half-hour of ABC time, from 10 to 10:30 p.m., for the year's first 30-minute paid television commercial for the re-election of Nixon.

ABC cleared the time and shifted the scheduled Julie Andrews show which had Robert Goulet as its guest star to next Wednesday night.

Then early this week, the "Democrats for Nixon" committee canceled its half-hour order. Whereupon ABC hastily restored the Andrews-Goulet segment to its original broadcast date of Oct. 4.

Why was the order canceled? "They (committee officials) said they weren't able to put the program together in time," said an ABC official.

"Mr. Connolly has a bad sinus infection," said a spokeswoman for the committee, which is headed by a prominent Democrat, former Treasury Secretary John B. Connolly.

She explained that the former Texas governor had planned to tape the special half-hour program until he was forced to cancel out.

The cancellation gives the regular GOP campaign committee the first 30-minute television salvo on behalf of the President.

It's happening tonight at 9 p.m. on ABC, where the first half of "The Men" will be replaced by what a GOP spokesman calls "a film documentary of the President's record, both foreign and domestic."

The spokesman said no decision has been made yet on further time purchases for 30-minute shows about Nixon.

This apparent lack of firm decision on when and where half-hour campaign spots will be shown isn't limited to the Nixon forces.

The first 30-minute ad for Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., aired Sunday night on CBS. But only after his campaign committee made a last-minute time change to avoid sitting it against "Love Story" on ABC.

The uncertainty of it all is making life extremely hectic for network programming people and the special sales units all three networks have set up to handle political time purchases until Nov. 7.

Are the sales units dealing with coldly calculating politicians who have well-conceived television ad campaigns to "sell" their candidate? No way, says one network veteran who declined to be identified.

"They just seem to buy as the spirit moves them," he said.

Senate moving to decide on welfare bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — After shelving the key question of welfare reform for as long as eight years, the Senate is moving toward a final decision on the massive Social Security-welfare bill.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., manager of the 980-page measure, said the Senate is over the hump on the bill and may be able to pass it tonight. But he said it is more likely the final vote will come Friday.

The fight over the most heavily contested part of the bill was settled Wednesday with a decision not to put any of three rival welfare-reform plans into effect but to provide for tests of all them.

This could mean that no effective reform will take place for as much as eight years, if,

as expected the House goes along with the test idea.

Meanwhile, the costly and rapidly expanding program of aid to families with dependent children will continue pretty much as at present.

The AFDC rolls have tripled in the past 10 years, and it is this program that most often is cited by critics of "the welfare mess."

In voting 46 to 40 for the amendment by Sen. William V. Roth Jr., R-Del., to test the three plans, the Senate junked the welfare program which evolved from many months of work in the Senate Finance Committee.

This would have required many of the parents now on the AFDC rolls, mostly mothers, to trade their welfare checks for jobs under a new federal agency.

However, the Senate in a long series of votes retained some peripheral provisions dealing with welfare families in the Finance Committee bill.

They would set up a big new day-care program to make it possible for more welfare mothers to go to work; provide work bonuses and wage supplements to try to induce welfare recipients to take jobs and employers to hire them; and create broad authority for prosecutors to try to find runaway fathers and make them support their families.

Republican Women slate sale

With an agenda crowded with last minute details concerning the opening of the local Republican headquarters, the Hempstead County Republican Women's Club met Tuesday evening, October 3 in the home of Mrs. Lynn Harris with several invited guests having a part on the program.

After the president, Mrs. Clarence Geist, had led the pledge of allegiance to the flag and had welcomed two new members, Mrs. John Gambs and Mrs. Dewayne Cole, several reports were heard concerning local club finances, and it was decided to conduct a white elephant sale on October 26 from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at the headquarters.

Mrs. Harris and Sam Andrews, who are chairmen for the local campaign headquarters, conducted the business session which included securing volunteer workers for the month of October at the headquarters, located at the old Kroger lot. A "Little Red Barn" utility building will house the headquarters, and on

HELEN HELP US!

—by Helen Bottel—

Not Doomed by Zodiac Signs RAP:

I'm 16 and, according to my horoscope, I have two sides. It's so true! One minute I can be as sweet as can be and the next, POOF! I'm the worst person you could ever want to meet. This is really tragic. I have lost friends... like right now:

See, my good friend and I were going to work after school and we had to stop at my house to pick up my uniform. I went in the door all cheerful and came out acting weird. I wouldn't talk, just turned her off, and the awful part is I don't know why!

Next day she wouldn't talk to me, and I can understand THAT. I had to have some excuse to get her back, so I lied and said someone in my family had died which turned me quiet. But she's stayed cool and distant, I guess 'cause she can't stand my moods.

Is there any way you can beat your Zodiac sign?—TWIN PERSONALITY

DEAR TWIN:
First, stop blaming the stars! What you need least is an excuse for your sweet-sour personality, and this is exactly what you are searching for in your horoscope.

Next, start analyzing your moods. There's always a reason behind your "down period," but often you don't recognize it. When you walked in the house, for example, did you suddenly feel low because someone cut on you? Or do you dislike your job, and picking up your uniform reminded you of boredom?... So you took it out on your friend.

Last, realize one big, glaring fact: Moodiness is actually selfishness. Everyone feels mean occasionally, but considerate people try to hide it from their friends.—HELEN TWIN P:

And if you can't hide your down periods entirely, (who can?) then at least be honest about them. A good friend will understand and even help find the reason for your sudden low, if you don't close her off, make her feel SHE is somehow to blame—and then later come up with an obvious lie.

Mainly, get into the CAUSE of those moods and ask yourself, "Are they really bad enough to turn me off?" Take it from one who knows: they usually aren't!—SUE

LAST THOUGHT FROM HELEN: If you can't find the cause—and your moods make life miserable—a few talks with a counselor might help you cope with the sudden blues.—H.

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:
One day I returned home unexpectedly and found my mother in the bedroom with another man. I'd never have suspected it of her, and I'm terribly upset.

She didn't see me—I left, went to a friend's, and phoned that I'd be home in half an hour, giving the guy time to leave. Should I tell my father, my mother, or keep out of something that doesn't concern a—TEENAGE DAUGHTER

DEAR T.D.:
Stay out of it!—SUE
DEAR TEEN:
I can see Sue's point: if you told your mother, you'd risk becoming an accomplice; your father?—you'd risk a broken home.

But you can't keep this secret to yourself long without showing the strain. I'd suggest you level with your mother. Perhaps fear of further discovery (by your dad) will shake her clear of the affair.—HELEN

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Neighbors at Odds

Grouchy Mrs. Baxter, an apartment dweller, had two reasons for cooking cabbage so often. First, she liked cabbage. Second, she liked to wait the cooking odors out of her open kitchen door, into the apartment of the new neighbors across the hall.

When the neighbors finally haled her into court, Mrs. Baxter insisted she had a right to cook whatever and however she pleased. But the court ruled that she was guilty of committing a nuisance, by maliciously inflicting discomfort on others. Psychologists tell us that hostility grows as living space shrinks. One of the law's touchier tasks is to mediate between neighbors at odds. And, as the above case indicates, evil intent may make the big difference in court. This is shown even more clearly by the law's changing attitudes toward spite fences. Such fences, erected deliberately to block off the daylight from a neighbor's house, used to be tolerated as a lawful exercise of property rights.

But now they are forbidden almost everywhere. As one court commented, in condemning a spite fence 11 feet high: "The right to enjoy the sunshine is a natural one, and no man can shut out the light of heaven for no better reason than to gratify his malice toward his neighbor."

Nonetheless, when we choose to live in an urban environment, we are also choosing the reasonable degree of vexation that goes with it. In another case, a family had a ventilating fan that blew cooking smells out of their kitchen, in the general direction of the house next door. But this time, when the neighbors went to court to complain, the judge took due note of the fact that the houses were 27 feet apart. At this distance, he said, the degree of annoyance was too slight to awaken the law's disapproval. The judge said he would not interfere "without some evidence that (the cooking odors) were revolting to a point beyond the effect of ordinary neighborhood exhalations."

Bill Burnett visits Hope

By MIKE DOWNS

Bill Burnett came to Hope! Not through a trade or to play with the Bobcats, but definitely to help Hope's high school athletes.

Bill is state director of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes (FCA), but he is probably best remembered as a former Razorback tailback.

Burnett met with the local athletes Tuesday afternoon to discuss the goals of the FCA and to assist in the organization of a "Huddle Group," which is a high school chapter of the FCA.

Burnett shared many of his personal experiences as a Christian athlete with the group and told how his being a Christian has helped him in his everyday endeavors as well as in athletics.

FCA is an organization pointed at helping athletes to have a deeper relationship with Christ. It not only helps the individual athlete; it is an asset to the team, the school and the community, according to Director Burnett.

The "chaplain," usually a layman from a local church, plays a key role in the "Huddle Group." He acts as the religious leader, meets with the group regularly, helps in the organization, development and planning of FCA projects and programs as well as lending spiritual guidance and helping individuals with personal problems.

Burnett was guest speaker at the Booster Club Tuesday night. He explained the purpose of FCA to the group and spoke to the adults about ways they could participate in the organization and development of the FCA.

Afterwards, Burnett visited the Fairgrounds where he awarded trophies to the winners of the Punt, Pass, and Kick competition.

Rev. Norris Steele and Rev. Kenneth Bazar as well as Dr. Jon Leim met with the group, which plans to elect officers next week.

Tigers are in the chips

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Detroit Tigers have won the chips in the American League Eastern Division and now head west for a game of higher stakes.

Next stop: Oakland, for the American League playoffs.

"They call us the over-the-hill gang and things like that because of all the veterans on our squad," says Tiger pitcher Mickey Lolich, "but I don't think we're that bad."

Apparently, some of the book-makers in Las Vegas don't think that the Tigers are that bad, either. They're rated a toss-up to win the best-of-five-game series from the A's, winners in the Western Division.

The Tigers, who closed out the regular season Wednesday with a meaningless 4-1 loss to the second-place Boston Red Sox, will deal Lolich in the first playoff game Saturday at the Oakland Coliseum.

The A's ended their regular baseball season Wednesday night on a positive note by whipping the California Angels 2-1. In the other AL games, the Minnesota Twins pounded the Chicago White Sox 14-3; the Milwaukee Brewers nipped the New York Yankees 1-0, and the Kansas City Royals blanked the Texas Rangers 4-0.

In the National League, the Philadelphia Phillies turned back the Chicago Cubs 2-1; the New York Mets topped the Montreal Expos 2-1; the Pittsburgh Pirates trimmed the St. Louis Cardinals 4-3; the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the Atlanta Braves 4-1; the Cincinnati Reds stopped the Houston Astros 4-2 and the San Francisco Giants defeated the San Diego Padres 6-4.

Oakland Manager Dick Williams awaits the Tigers' arrival with confidence.

"The club we'll play has been my preference," says Williams. "That's mainly because we have had better success against the Tigers than the Red Sox."

Hogs: just another rehearsal

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP)—The Arkansas Razorbacks practiced for two hours in pads Wednesday as they continued preparations for Saturday's Southwest Conference opener with Texas Christian University.

Several players missed the drill because of minor injuries or illnesses. They were center Stuart Freeland, quarterback Walter Nelson, guard Tom Reed and punter Drew Toole.

The A's took the season series from the Tigers, eight games to four. They were 3-9 against the Red Sox, who lost the Eastern pennant by a half-game.

Oakland's Jim "Catfish" Hunter will face Lolich in a dual of 20-game winners.

Marty Pattin fired a four-hit performance as Boston beat Detroit Wednesday and deprived Joe Coleman of a 20-game-winning season. Coleman, instead, wound up with his 14th loss after giving up all of Boston's runs in six innings.

Pinch-hitter Don Mincher's seventh-inning single drove in the winning run in Oakland's victory. John Odom, tuning up for a start in the second game of the playoffs Sunday, won his 18th game for the A's.

Bert Blyleven won his 17th game for Minnesota with the help of a 10-hit attack.

Johnny Briggs hit a sacrifice fly in the fourth inning for the game's only run and Jim Lumborg pitched a three-hitter to lead Milwaukee over New York. Roger Nelson pitched a two-hitter, both singles by Ted Ford, as Kansas City beat Texas.

Massanelli:

Dedicated and proud

Massanelli!

It sounds like something one would find in an Italian delicatessen. Down in Monticello, however, it is 175 pounds of fortitude carefully stacked into a 5-10 frame with mystical distinguishing traits.

Ronnie Massanelli, only a sophomore, is one in a recent string of small quarterbacks at the University of Arkansas at Monticello. What may set him apart from the others is a great prideful attitude.

He humbly credits his parents when it comes to being classified as a clean-cut, prideful and dedicated athlete.

"My pride comes from my family," Massanelli said. "All my life, my parents have taught me how much it means to be dedicated and proud. They once told me that when I am proud, they are proud. I hope I never let them down," he continued.

Being dedicated to Massanelli means "wanting to win and playing to the best of my ability."

It is no secret that much of the success of UAM's offense rests on the shoulders of this physical education major.

"He's mature in his thinking," said head football coach Bill Groce. "He's young, but respected. He has confidence in himself that he can do the job . . . and that's a most important factor in the game of football."

Massanelli got his big start as a freshman when Groce labeled him as the number one quarterback at the start of the Weevils' fourth game last fall.

"I'll never forget that one," Massanelli said. "I was thrilled to death. Sure, I had butterflies. Lots of them. But that's the way I am before every game."

"That first season taught me a lot, not only in football, but as a person. I feel I can carry a responsibility with a great deal of confidence in getting the job done," he continued.

The Weevils haven't really depended upon Massanelli's throwing talents. UAM has operated from the Houston veer since the Hope, Ark., product came to Monticello . . . and that means a lot of running with the ball.

In fact, the Weevils ran 535 rushing plays in 1971 for 2,383 yards. That is compared with only 116 pass attempts and 677 yards. But Massanelli is trying to crank up some type of aerial activity in the Weevil encampment this fall.

He has already thrown for five touchdowns in UAM's last two games. He had only four during the entire 10 games last year. And his young career's total offensive output has now reached 784 yards.

"I worked all summer on my passing," Massanelli related. "I threw close to 250 passes every day. I tried to not only improve my accuracy, but my quickness as well."

Groce has observed that Massanelli has vastly improved over that freshman season.

"He's throwing much harder and with much more confidence," the Weevil mentor commented. "I first noticed this during spring practice, but he has really come on this fall."

"But more important," Groce continued, "he is just a great leader out on the field."

Massanelli is constantly trying to improve. "I study game films to see how I ran a particular play, or how I passed to a certain receiver. I then try to correct my mistakes in practice," he said.

Whatever happens during 1972 will produce an effect not only upon the UAM team, but in particular to this giddy, little field general.

He admits that his size is a handicap. But he tries to overcome this so-called weakness with mature thinking and dedicated ability.

But who knows. Before he leaves this Big Green machine in 1974, this Weevil meal-ticket could just prove that good things do indeed come in small packages.

or bisque as it is now called, is removed. During this firing the soft greenware is dried and turns chalky white with a surface that is smooth and hard.

"Now the real fun starts," Mrs. Southward laughed. "You don't have to be an artist. Most of my customers are just average people looking for something creative to do. I think the most impressive thing about working with ceramics is that things beginners make can be attractive. It isn't anything glamorous, it's just fun and good therapy. Painting isn't as hard as one might think.

There are no set rules and half the fun is picking out colors and coming up with something original and completely unlike anyone else's."

Two women in a ceramics class were working on pieces in various stages. The class is very informal and there was constant chatter as members of the group exchanged ideas and planned future projects.

"This is the busiest time of the year for us", Ruth smiled. "People are beginning to think about Christmas and what nicer gift to give than something you have made yourself?"

Arthur Robinson of Philadelphia has been one of the world's greatest players for many years. Here we see him discovering East's queen of diamonds just as surely as Columbus discovered America in 1492.

It was an important team match and Bobby Jordan put Arthur in a slightly optimistic grand slam.

Arthur decided quite properly that he wanted to find the best play for his contract and was not interested in playing safe so as not to go down more than one trick.

He cashed two spades two hearts and two clubs and the second club brought some real information. East showed out!

This club unbalance indicated the great desirability of playing East for the queen of diamonds but Arthur wanted a sure thing.

He cashed the last high spade and last high heart and West followed to both.

That accounted for 12 of West's cards. He couldn't have more than one diamond. A diamond to dummy's king picked up West's nine-spot and the proved finesse against East's queen brought in the grand slam.

Easy when you see it here. Arthur made it just as easy at the table.

With the aid of a "goose-neck" hydraulic bucket, city employees cut off some high limbs off one of the 14 elm trees which had to be removed after a deep sewer line placed in the area apparently cut into roots.

One killed in Ireland bomb explosions

BELFAST (AP) — Bomb explosions killed one man and wrecked a Belfast store early today.

Patrick Connelly, 23, a Roman Catholic bricklayer, was killed and his parents and brother were wounded when a bomb went off as they watched television at home in Portadown, a predominately Protestant industrial town south of Belfast. The bombing was blamed on Protestant extremists.

It was the 503rd confirmed fatality in three years of sectarian violence in Ulster.

A 200-pound bomb wrecked a Belfast Cooperative Society store in the city center and set a Cooperative Society warehouse ablaze. Firemen kept the flames from the neighboring Irish Times, a Catholic newspaper. Several other buildings were badly damaged.

Haig returns from Saigon to report to Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Maj. Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr. has returned from Saigon to report to President Nixon on four days of secret consultations with South Vietnamese leaders.

Haig, who as deputy assistant for national-security affairs is Henry Kissinger's top aide, reached the White House Wednesday night at about the same time Nixon returned from an overnight stay at Camp David.

Nixon dispatched Haig to Saigon last week to meet with South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu and other officials. Details of his talks weren't divulged, but they were believed to have centered on U.S.-Saigon positions in the Paris peace talks, including various cease-fire formulas.

People in the News

NEW YORK (AP) — Patricia Ryan Nixon has been honored by the American Irish Historical Society as an "outstanding person of Irish-American lineage."

"As a granddaughter of Irish immigrants I am deeply honored by this award," the President's wife said Wednesday night at the society's annual dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

Lt. Gov. Malcolm Wilson presented her the gold medal that was pinned to a ribbon. "It's just gorgeous," Mrs. Nixon said, "It's just beautiful."

Outside the hotel about 100 members of Irish civil rights groups picketed to protest U.S. policy on Ireland. Mrs. Nixon declined to comment saying, "I'm here for another occasion."

NEW YORK (AP) — Carlo Gambino, the reputed boss of bosses of organized crime, was reported to be in satisfactory condition in Columbus Hospital today after suffering a "coronary insufficiency."

Gambino, 70, was taken to the hospital from his Brooklyn home last Saturday. He has a 14-year history of heart trouble, which at times has incapacitated him.

A hospital spokesman said that "Mr. Gambino is suffering from a severe heart condition" and gave his condition but declined to comment further.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A request by singer Dean Martin that his marriage be immediately dissolved has been taken under advisement by a judge.

Martin, 44, asked for the dissolution with the stipulation that a property settlement could be made later.

Superior Court Judge Lester E. Olson on Wednesday granted attorneys three days to submit briefs on the request, which is opposed by Martin's wife of 22 years, Jeanne, 44.

The singer filed for divorce last Valentine's Day. He and his wife separated in September 1969, according to court records. Martin didn't appear for Wednesday's court proceedings.

Boyleing it down

NEW YORK (AP) — "Paris is to Europe what the navel is to a nude statue," said the old lady with the Monlike head, who had just become a best-selling author at 80. "Paris is still the cultural and artistic center of Europe as well as France."

But for nearly 80 years Paris has also been the life fountain for Janet Flanner, the wise, witty and perceptive author of the famous biweekly "Letter from Paris" in the New Yorker magazine.

A selection from her more than 600 letters — covering the years from 1925 through 1959 — has been edited by Irving Druhan and published as "Paris Was Yesterday." It is a memorable and evocative portrait of the French capital, and has made several best-seller lists.

Why is Miss Flanner so nostalgic about the 1920's?

"Because I am 50 years older now, and because Paris now is 50 years younger in its false modernizations," she replied.

"Yes, I am homesick for the France that was yesterday. Paris was irresistible then. Everything was new, and nothing seemed false. Today, unfortunately, France has imitated America and become semi-Americanized. Paris then was unique, as London still is."

Miss Flanner came to Paris after a brief stint as a movie critic for the Indianapolis Star.

Soon she knew everything and everybody there, from the Eiffel Tower to Picasso.

"I educated myself by travel and reading the French newspapers," she recalled. "You can get a good education from them ... And news in France is always semihistorical. You always get a sense of the past, as well as an insight into the future — if you look sharp."

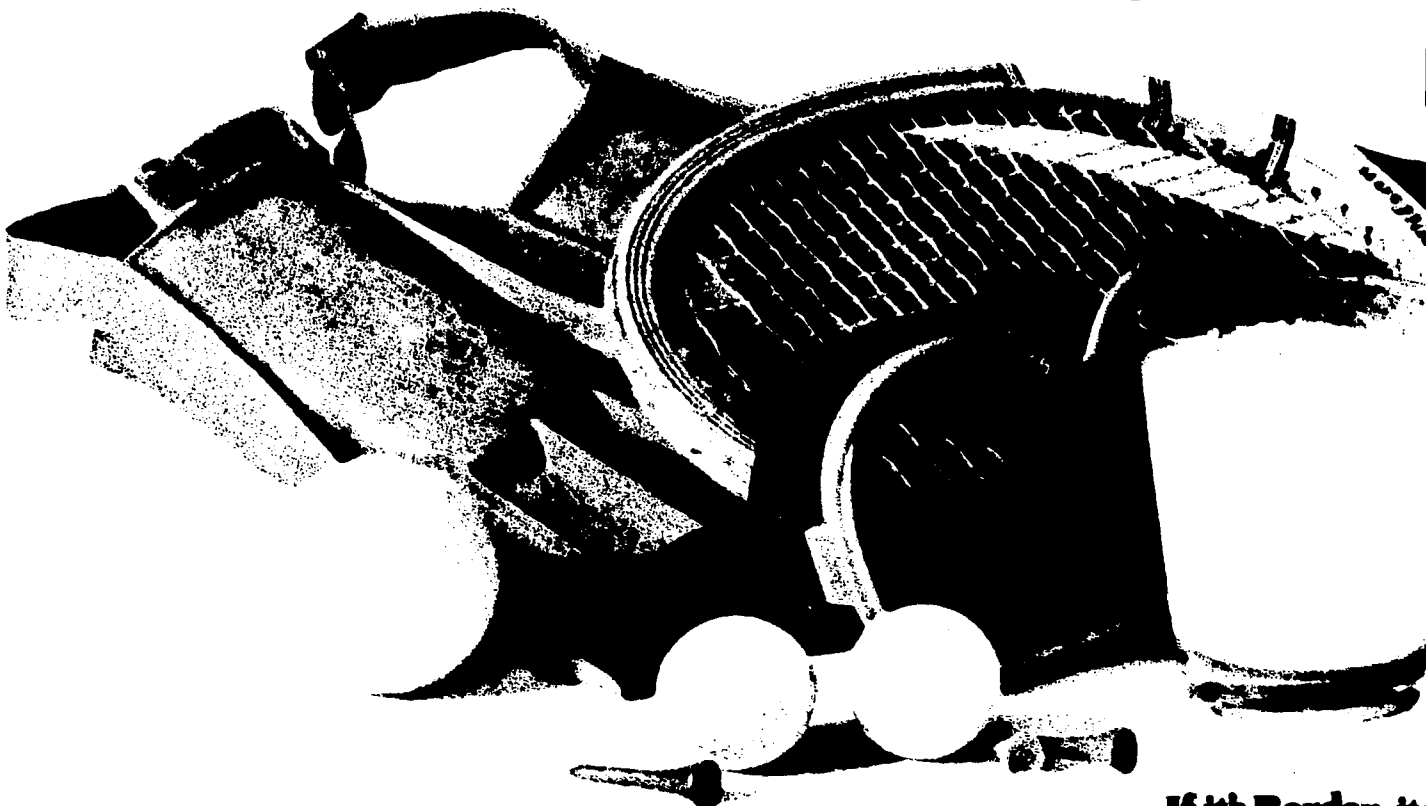

Sides at Paris are far apart

PARIS (AP) — North Vietnam's chief peace negotiator said today that "up to now" the positions of the two sides "are far apart on military and political questions."

Xuan Thuy, arriving for the 162nd session of the Paris Peace talks, also told newsmen that he "strongly protests the fact that in recent days the Nixon administration is carrying out large scale bombing in North Vietnam."

He said American air attacks have been aimed at "populous regions, dikes, dams — and what is criminal — schools, just as the classes are being resumed."

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — Cancer-fighting scientists from 10 nations are meeting here today to examine the potential of BCG as a possible new treatment for human cancer.

The bacteria substance has been viewed as a prospective treatment for cancer for a decade, according to the U.S. National Cancer Institute which is sponsoring the conference.

There is still no proof whether or not it will work, but research has been encouraging, says the NCI.

Studies also have suggested that BCG might serve to prevent at least one form of cancer—childhood leukemia—although that, too, is unproven, the institute has said.

The two-day conference of 80 scientists represents the first international meeting of researchers studying BCG.

By coincidence, it comes about two weeks after an Oak Ridge, Tenn. scientist reported using the substance against animal cancers. The report stirred widespread but quickly quashed hopes that a major breakthrough had already been achieved toward curing human cancers.

Long-used as an antituberculosis vaccine, BCG more recently came under investigation as a possible means of treating cancer by stimulating the body's natural immunological defenses against disease.

The material is actually a strain of tuberculosis bacteria which causes TB in cattle but not in humans.

The idea of using BCG against cancer is based on the fact that most people have developed a natural immunity to TB. Administering BCG to a cancer patient conceivably could reawaken his body's memory of its reaction to TB germs and marshal the body's defensive "shock troops" in great strength against the cancer invader.

Probably in anticipation of the exchange here, the National Cancer Institute last week issued a statement declaring that results obtained during the past few years limited human trials of BCG "while encouraging, do not represent a major breakthrough."

"BCG is not now ready for other than controlled clinical trials in human cancers and probably never will be of use by itself in curing patients with advanced cancer," the statement said, adding that results in human trials were "not definitive."

The institute's statement was triggered by the hope-laden public reaction—especially among cancer patients and their families—to a report Sept. 22 by Dr. Michael G. Hanna Jr. of the Oak Ridge National Laboratory, an NCI contract-researcher, that BCG had proven 100 per cent effective in curing cancer in laboratory animals. The Oak Ridge laboratory said the animal research described by Hanna did not represent a major breakthrough in the human cancer field.

No records of graves made, sheriff testifies at Corona murder trial

FAIRFIELD, Calif. (AP) — No official records were made on the locations of seven of the 28 gravesites found near Yuba City before deputies arrested Juan Corona last year and charged him with the slayings, an undersheriff has testified.

Butter County Undersheriff Frank Cartocelli testified under cross-examination Wednesday that he marked the graves' locations on two courtroom maps from memory because he had visited the locations many times.

"Do you have any idea what directions are all about? How can you check anybody else's work when you don't even know which direction is south?" defense attorney Richard Hawk asked.

Hawk's questions came as Cartocelli was winding up his effort to mark all 28 gravesites with red arrows on two maps — an aerial photograph map and large wall mock-up of the Feather River area.

Campaign '72:

Playing with semantics

NEW YORK (AP) — Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern said today President Nixon's foreign policy is one of "unconscious isolationism" and pledged if elected to supplant it with what he called a new internationalism.

The South Dakota senator said he would as president extend diplomatic recognition to the People's Republic of China, a step Nixon has said is not in prospect in the foreseeable future, despite his own summit diplomacy in Peking.

As always, McGovern vowed to withdraw immediately from the war in Indochina, but the speech he prepared for the City Club of Cleveland was his first detailed account of his foreign policy intentions toward the rest of the world.

McGovern said the United States is isolated from allies and trading partners by "six gun diplomacy and failure to consult," and from the developing nations by attitudes that favor big business there.

"We are isolated from reality by the insistence that tough talk and big Pentagon budgets are somehow synonymous with national manhood," McGovern said.

"I suggest that we must reject this unconscious isolationism in favor of a New Internationalism based not only upon our vital interests, but also upon the kind of nation we can and should be," he said.

McGovern thus sought to take the foreign policy offensive against Republicans who have charged that his proposals for defense cuts, withdrawal from Indochina and U.S. troop reductions in Europe add up to a new isolationism.

"Let us have the defense we need," McGovern said. "But let us not permit the insatiable appetite of our military to replace our good sense, and undermine the prospects for reduction in the balance of nuclear terror."

He said under Nixon "we are becoming a second-rate nation in the terms that will really count in the 1970s," in international economics, and cooperative aid for the developing nations.

McGovern issued his 12-page foreign policy manifesto as he campaigning in New York and Cleveland.

He began it with an appearance before Democratic nationalities groups in New York City, saying it is the Democrats, not Nixon or the Republicans, who have historically encouraged openness in U.S. immigration policies.

McGovern did his vote-hunting Wednesday with a half-dozen speeches in Buffalo and New York City, campaigning among blacks and leaders of organized labor appearing before a Liberal Party dinner in New York that drew more than 1,000 people.

McGovern was joined at the dinner by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, who described the 1972 choice as one "between the corrupt, and by Mayor John V. Lindsay, who said "there's still time to fight" for the Democratic ticket.

Interest rates on the increase

NEW YORK (AP) — Interest rates are on the rise, but most economists remain confident there will be no repetition of the credit crunch which pinched the economy in 1969 and 1970.

Investors, apparently less confident, have sent the stock market reeling at every announced hike. News of prime rate hikes by major banks sent the Dow-Jones industrial average into a 12-point tailspin Aug. 24, and snapped a budding rally on Sept. 29.

With the adoption Tuesday of a 5 1/2 per cent prime rate by San Francisco's Bank of America, the nation's largest commercial bank, the 5 1/2 per cent prime became virtually universal — for the time being.

Why are investors so concerned about interest rates? For an answer, one need only go back to 1969.

Prime rates — the interest charged by banks on loans to their most creditworthy customers — were then at 8 1/2 per cent, the highest in the nation's history.

"Companies like the Bell Telephone system had to pay 9 1/2 per cent," recalled Tilford Gaines, an economist with Manufacturers Hanover Trust

Co. "Other companies with less credit had to pay 12 to 13 per cent — if they were lucky enough to be able to get money at all."

With no money available for expansion, many companies had to stagnate or cut back their operations. This in turn affected employment. Housing starts were at a low ebb as mortgage money cost around 10 per cent interest. The stock market sagged.

The crunch, Gaines said, was a function of a deliberate contraction in money supply engineered by the Federal Reserve Board. "The policy was aimed at stopping inflation. It helped to do that, but it also created a business recession."

Gaines, and many other economists, are convinced that the Fed has "learned its lesson" and would not attempt such a drastic contraction of money supply again.

"The rise in interest rates we're experiencing now," said William Nelson of Moody's Investors Service, "is a natural reflection of increased demand for money in an expanding economy. But it still makes people nervous because they remember the crunch."

Millionaire jailed

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP) — Millionaire businessman Glenn W. Turner was jailed for five hours after a demonstration by a group of 600 women supporters sparked the wrath of a circuit court judge.

The 38-year-old Turner was bailed out of the Pinellas County Jail by nightfall Wednesday after his lawyers got a $2,000 bond set by 2nd District Court of Appeals Judge Joseph McNulty.

His temporary reprieve comes up for review today in Lakeland when the judge will hear arguments on whether the bond should be made permanent.

"I'm not going to preside in a zoo," Circuit Judge William A. Patterson said as he issued the contempt citation that would have confined Turner behind bars for 150 days.

Patterson claimed the demonstration by wives of Turner company salesmen resulted in a "circus-like atmosphere" (that) made a mockery of his court.

Turner and two business associates were scheduled for trial Wednesday morning on 86 counts of violating Florida's securities law in sales of "Dare To Be Great," a motivational course. It is a subsidiary of Turner's 10-company, Orlando-based conglomerate, Glenn W. Turner Enterprises.

The government claims the self-improvement course franchisees are securities under state law. Turner's legal team claims they are not.

Two hours before Turner arrived, women devotees jammed the courthouse steps waving hand-lettered signs.

HEA met on Tuesday

Hope Education Association met Tuesday afternoon in the high school auditorium.

James Miller of Little Rock was presented by Jim Caudle, co-ordinator, and Floyd Young, counselor, for the vocational education exemplary program.

Miller, who is supervisor of general co-operative education and the work-study program, discussed making education more relevant through emphasis on career education.

"This is not a course, this is a concept and good teachers have been doing it for years," he said.

The speaker, as well as the U.S. Office of Education film which he showed, emphasized the need for emphasis on career goals from the elementary grades through high school. "Public schools have been failing to meet the needs of 80 per cent of the students who cannot or will not attend college."

In the business session, teachers voted to accept the resignation of Harrell Dickerson as president since he is now in an administrative position, to elect John Burgess as president and Mrs. Valjean Echols as vice president.

Earl Downs' PACE report included the fact that Hope teachers had contributed more personal contributions per teacher than any other school in Arkansas.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB Epileptics can live normal lives

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—I am an epileptic. I only get seizures when I forget to take my medication, which I haven't forgotten for a long time. I started getting seizures when I was 12 years old and now I am 21. I would like some information on Pennsylvania laws for driver's licenses. I now have one but different people have asked me how I was allowed to drive a car when I was taking medication for epilepsy. I don't know how to answer them. I had one seizure in the last five years and then I forgot to take my medication.

Also, would you please print some information on drinking. I take Dilantin and phenobarbital. I do not drink at all but I was told that if I ever did, it would cause trouble, because this medication and drinks will not mix. Is it safe to drink and take medication? My mother is a regular reader of your column and she clips and saves all information on epilepsy. So keep up the good work and help people to understand that we learned to live with this disease and we are normal, not people to be feared.

I am a male and you would be surprised to learn that once a girl knows I take medication for epilepsy, she doesn't want to go with me any more.

Dear Reader—All states now issue driver's licenses to individuals who have epilepsy. The standards vary a bit and in some states they require a doctor's certificate but not in all.

The only concern about driving is the question of whether an epileptic will have a seizure or not, and if the person's seizures are well controlled and he hasn't had one for some period of time then he is considered quite safe, not only by the usual state laws but also by the insurance companies that provide automobile insurance for individuals with these problems. Your five years record with no seizures would go a long way towards making you a very safe driver. When you combine this with your statement that you don't drink at all, it makes you a lot safer than a lot of the drunks on the highway. There are many more highway accidents from alcohol than there are from epilepsy.

There are many problems from mixing drugs and alcohol is a drug. Although much is known about its undesirable effects on the human body, less is known about its undesirable effects when it is combined with other drugs. However, a number of the tranquilizers and phenobarbital, mixed with alcohol can even be fatal. You're wise to avoid using alcoholic beverages, and I would make the same recommendation to anyone who has to take tranquilizers, sleeping tablets or any form of anticonvulsive medicine.

No, I wouldn't be surprised about your problem in dating girls. Don't let that stop you. You can look upon it as a way of eliminating a lot of girls who wouldn't be a suitable mate anyway. You wouldn't want to be married to someone whose own prejudice affected her relationship with you. A woman who really loves you will want to share all of your life and problems, whatever they are, just as you will want to do the same with her.
